

Outreach — Send Cadence & Second-Touch Template

Cold outreach from your Outlook · review, drip, log, one value-led nudge

Daily send target

When	Volume
Week 1	About 15 to 20 a day, to warm up your sending.
Week 2 onward	Ramp to about 30 to 40 a day if replies come and nothing bounces or flags.
Cap	Around 40 a day for cold from a personal mailbox.
Best windows	Mid-morning Tuesday to Thursday. Avoid Monday mornings and Friday afternoons.

Keep it plain text with minimal links. If bounces or spam complaints rise, pull back.

Process

1. Review each draft before sending, and fix any forced or fake personalization opener.
2. Send in the daily batch, and mark Status in the Outreach modal as you go.
3. Second touch about 5 to 7 days later, sent as a reply to your own original email (same thread).
4. When someone replies, move them into Leads and work the Do/Wait pipeline.
5. Never say "just following up" or "circling back." Always lead with value.

Second-touch template

Subject: Re: [your first subject]

Hi [First name],

A space just opened near you that fits how [Company]'s volume moves. It's [size / city], flexible month-to-month.

Most [industry] operations we work with use us as a release valve for peak season: flexible space, all-in pricing, in within a day or two, no long commitment. If overflow or a second site is ever on your radar, I'm happy to show you what's open near [location].

No rush either way.

Best,

Justin

[phone] · Justin.Cho@cubework.com

Swap-in value hooks

Use whichever is true that week in place of the first line:

Hook	Line
Nearby unit opened	"A space just opened near you that fits how [Company]'s volume moves. It's [size / city], flexible month-to-month."
Seasonal / container overflow (great for fashion district)	"Heading into peak season. If a container lands and your back room can't hold it, we've got flexible overflow space nearby you can take month-to-month."
Cost / flexibility	"Quick one. Our all-in pricing usually runs about 20% to 30% under the all-in cost of a traditional space once you add CAM/NNN, with no long commitment."

*Email rules: about 90 to 120 words, no dashes, no bulleted lists in the email body, sign "Best, Justin".
Keep the HTML formatting for this reference page only; send the actual emails as plain text for deliverability.*